Sallie Hambright-Belue is a Licensed Architect and an Associate Professor in the School of Architecture at Clemson University. Her teaching and research is focused in Beginning Design Pedagogy, Intersection of Architecture and Agriculture, and Collaborative Practice Pedagogy. She serves as the Director of Undergraduate Architecture Programs and the First-Year Coordinator in the Bachelor of Arts in Architecture degree program.

Sallie has also taught a graduate design studio and a design discourse seminar at the Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta. She has worked at Robert A.M. Stern Architects and Eisenman Architects in New York, where she was project architect for the Sheikh Zayed National Museum and the Pozzuoli Waterfront Masterplan.

In addition to practice and teaching, Sallie and her husband, Brent, own and operate Thicketty Mountain Farms in Cowpens, SC. The farm produces sustainably raised grass-fed beef at the Cleveland Preserve Farm. The Cleveland Preserve Farm is owned by the Spartanburg Area Conservancy, which is dedicated to protecting and conserving land for Spartanburg area citizens, volunteers, and visitors by building strong relationships within the community through positive outreach. This mission aligns with interest of Thicketty Mountain Farms.

ADMINISTRATIVE

Director of Undergraduate Architecture Programs

2021 - Present Lead Advisor: Coordinate and develop an advising plan for all BA Arch undergraduates - about 420 students. I personally advised about 140 students as well as helped any other students who were unable to reach their advisor and needed assistance.

2021 - Present Curriculum Coordination: Led a committee made up of key undergraduate faculty in the re-assessment and coordination of our undergraduate program.

2021 - Present University Assessment
Completed student learning outcomes and completed the Anthology assessment.
Took the BA in Architecture program from “Not in Good Standing” to “Working Towards Good Standing” this year and expect to reach “Good Standing” at the end of the assessment cycle in late Fall 2022.
This process required me to develop the assessment items, develop the rubrics, and collaborate across the undergraduate program to identify courses where the assessment would take place.

2021 - Present Recruitment
Conduct weekly tours to prospective students. This included over 300 individuals in the 2021/2022 school year. This does not include open houses, extra tours given that were set up independently, virtual information sessions, and other meetings with prospective students.
Created a program to outreach to guidance counselors/art teachers/drafting teachers. One professional development course was given virtually in the Spring and another in-person course was held in the summer.
Created a targeted recruitment plan for underserved students which included letters, post cards from student organizations, and calls to the top students. I also created a survey to learn why some students of color did not commit to Clemson.
Attended the Men of Color Summit and coordinated an exhibit table to share information about our programs.

2021 - Present Exit Interviews: Develop and conducted an exit survey and interview program to collect information about our program from the student’s perspective.

2021 - Present Promotion
Wrote and coordinated a newsletter for the School of Architecture in January focused on the BA in Architecture program.
Wrote and coordinated the BA in Architecture information for the end of year publication.

2021 - 2022 Articulation Agreement - Midlands Technical College

2021 - 2022 Articulation Agreement - Greenville Technical College

2021 - 2022 Orientation: Developed the freshman orientation module for architecture where there had not been one before.

2021 - 2022 Curriculum: Developed and led the program through the extensive general education changes that took place in the 2021/2022 academic year. Eleven proposals were voted on and approved during the academic year.
